Dear Sir,

We live at the other end of this railway line, and sit at Wittersham Station crossing very often indeed, and the train is hardly ever even HALF full, as we can see clearly into the compartments, and wave to children at Christmas time. So to go through all the disruption to people's lives and land, for a venture which is far from popular, would be a criminal waste of time and money, and the Earth's resources, to say the very least.

Yours faithfully,

Caroline everett

ps I do recommend you come and verify what I say for yourselves.
