Subject: Network Rail Anglia Level Crossing Reductions TWA Order

To whom it may concern,

I read your article in the Newmarket News about the crossing closures taking part in East Anglia and I would like to put my opinion forward. Five years ago my mother was using a level crossing in Suffolk and was hit by a train and killed. Those types of crossing are dangerous beyond belief and it is always only a matter of time before someone is killed on them. It is ridiculous that people can just freely walk on the track without a sign or signal that tells them the train is coming. I understand other peoples argument about it 'tearing the town in half' but there needs to be an alternative besides walking on a train track!

I believe this is
