The Secretary of State is a Minister designated<sup>1</sup> for the purposes of section 2(2) of the European Communities Act  $1972^2$  in relation to measures relating to apparatus which is liable to cause electromagnetic disturbance and to apparatus the performance of which could be affected by such disturbance.

These Regulations make provision for a purpose mentioned in section 2(2) of the European Communities Act 1972 and it appears to the Secretary of State that it is expedient for certain references to provisions of EU instruments to be construed as references to those provisions as amended from time to time.

The Secretary of State makes these Regulations in exercise of the powers conferred by section 2(2) of, and paragraph  $1A^3$  of Schedule 2 to, the European Communities Act 1972.

[2A.— Designated standard

(1) Subject to paragraphs (6) and (7), in these Regulations a "designated standard" means a technical specification which is—

(a) adopted by a recognised standardisation body [ or an international standardising body ] $^2$ , for repeated or continuous application, with which compliance is not compulsory; and

(b) designated by the Secretary of State by publishing the reference to the standard and maintaining that publication in a manner the Secretary of State considers appropriate.

(2) For the purposes of paragraph (1), a "technical specification" means a document that prescribes technical requirements to be fulfilled by a product, process, service or system and which lays down one or more of the following—

(a) the characteristics required of a product, including—

(i) levels of quality, performance, interoperability, environmental protection, health, safety or dimensions, and

(ii) the requirements applicable to the product as regards the name under which the product is sold, terminology, symbols, testing and test methods, packaging, marking or labelling and conformity assessment procedures; and

(b) production methods and processes relating to the product, where these have an effect on the characteristics of the product.

(3) For the purposes of this regulation a "recognised standardisation body" means any one of the following organisations—

- (a) the European Committee for Standardisation (CEN);
- (b) the European Committee for Electrotechnical Standardisation (Cenelec);
- (c) the European Telecommunications Standards Institute (ETSI);
- (d) the British Standards Institution (BSI).

[(3A) In this regulation "international standardising body" has the same meaning as it has for the purposes of the Agreement on Technical Barriers to Trade, part of Annex 1A to the agreement establishing the World Trade Organisation signed at Marrakesh on 15 April 1994 (as modified from time to time).]<sup>3</sup>

(4) When considering whether the manner of publication of a reference is appropriate in accordance with paragraph (1)(b), the Secretary of State must have regard to whether the publication will draw the standard to the attention of any person who may have an interest in the standard.

(5) Before publishing the reference to a technical specification adopted by the British Standards Institution, the Secretary of State must have regard to whether the technical specification is consistent with [such ]<sup>4</sup> technical specifications adopted by the other recognised standardisation bodies [ or by international standardising bodies as the Secretary of State considers to be relevant ]<sup>5</sup>.

(6) The Secretary of State may remove from publication the reference to a standard which has been published in accordance with paragraph (1)(b).

(7) Where the Secretary of State removes the reference to a standard from publication, that standard is no longer a designated standard.

(8) In this regulation, a reference to a "product" is a reference to apparatus to which these Regulations apply.

(9) The Secretary of State may by regulation amend paragraph (3) to reflect any changes in the name or structure of the recognised standardisation bodies.

(10) Regulations made under paragraph (9) are to be made by statutory instrument.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Regulations)

These Regulations transpose Directive 2014/30/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council of 26 February 2014 on the harmonisation of the laws of the Member States relating to electromagnetic compatibility (recast) (OJ L 96, 29.3.2014, p.79) ("the Directive").

The Directive repeals and replaces Directive 2004/108/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 15 December 2004 on the approximation of the laws of the Member States relating to electromagnetic compatibility and repealing Directive 89/336/EEC which was implemented in the United Kingdom by the Electromagnetic Compatibility Regulations 2006 (S.I. 2006/3418) (as amended). These Regulations revoke and replace S.I. 2006/3418.

Regulations 3 to 5 set out the application of the Regulations to apparatus and equipment, as defined in regulation 2.

Part 2 sets out the obligations of economic operators. Regulations 8 to 16 set out the obligations that are specific to manufacturers. Obligations include ensuring that apparatus has been designed and manufactured in accordance with the essential requirements set out in Schedule 1, having a relevant conformity assessment procedure carried out before the apparatus is placed on the market and affixing the CE marking. Regulation 38 sets out the obligations which an authorised representative, appointed by a manufacturer, may and may not perform on the manufacturer's behalf.

Regulations 17 to 25 set out the obligations that are specific to importers. These obligations include ensuring that the importer is not placing on the market apparatus which is not in conformity with the essential requirements, checking that the manufacturer has carried out a relevant conformity assessment procedure and ensuring the apparatus bears the name and address of the importer. Those regulations also include an obligation to ensure that, while the importer is responsible for apparatus, the storage and transport of the apparatus does not jeopardise its conformity with the essential requirements.

Regulations 26 to 31 set out the obligations that are specific to distributors. These obligations include acting with due care to ensure that apparatus is in conformity with Part 2 and checking that apparatus bears the CE marking. Those regulations also include an obligation to ensure that, while the distributer is responsible for apparatus, the storage and transport of the apparatus does not jeopardise its conformity with the essential requirements.

Regulations 32 to 37 set out obligations which apply to all economic operators. These obligations include making sure that the EU declaration of conformity is in English before apparatus is placed on the market. Those regulations also include an obligation to identify other economic operators in the supply chain, an obligation to provide information with apparatus, such as required precautions to ensure conformity with Part 1 of Schedule 1, and a prohibition on the improper use of the CE marking.

Part 3 contains provisions concerning the conformity assessment procedures, declarations of conformity and CE marking for apparatus.

Part 4 contains provisions concerning the bodies which carry out conformity assessment procedures under the Regulations.

Part 5 sets out provisions for market surveillance and enforcement of these Regulations. Regulation 52 designates the enforcing authorities and regulation 53 designates the market surveillance authorities. Regulation 54 and Schedule 7 provide for the powers which the enforcement and market surveillance authorities are to have. Regulation 61 provides for the contravention of certain provisions of these Regulations to be an offence. Regulation 62 sets out the penalties that are to apply for offences under these Regulations.

Part 6 sets out a review provision and transitional provisions and consequential amendments. The Electromagnetic Compatibility Regulations 2006 (S.I. 2006/3418) (as amended) will continue to apply to apparatus placed on the market before the date on which these Regulations came into force. Regulation 75 makes consequential amendments.

A transposition note and full impact assessment of the impact that these Regulations will have on the costs of business, the voluntary sector and the public sector are available from the Single Market Product Safety Team, Department for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy, 1 Victoria Street, London SW1H 0ET and are also published with the Explanatory Memorandum alongside these Regulations on www.legislation.gov.uk.
